

PUBLISHED DAILY AND TRI-WEEKLY BY EDGAR ENOWDEN,

Almost everybody who was in either army during the civil war, and who is now alive, knows that federal officers did wear steel breastplates. We don't say all, or how many, of the officers were them, but that many did is a fact that can be proved by the most direct and positiva avidance. We, with our own eyes, have seen them on dead federal officers, and during a Frirmish at Manaesas Gap we saw a wounded Inderal officer whose whole breast and abdomen were covered with a plate, but as his comrades did not properly appreciate the services we were rendering him, but shot at us, we did not continue those services long enough to determine whether the metal that compresed that plate was steel or iron. General Dick Taylor, usi generally known, in his recollections of the war, says that some federal officers went into hatt'e strapped to their saddles, and wearing steel breest plates. This assertion, which is as dead. true as Holy Writ, is now denied by almost the entire redical press of the country, and even by many independent and democratic papers of the North. The Washington Capital, usually a fair paper, though admitting that federal officers were strapped to their saddles, says :

"The General's gabble about breastplates is stupid'y untrue. Some enterprising and ingenious gentlemen, to-king to make an honest penny, filered steel treastplates and steel collars, to take the place of linen and paper; but the trade did not prosper. The specimen breastplate was generally set up as a target and riddled with bullets from Colt's revolvers. The steel collars were more popular-it was so convenient to clean Styrin. them with one's tooth brush; but after a man or two had his throat cut from a fall or other acci dent, the collars went out of fashion.' Now this explanation of the possible existence of the plates referred to sounds plausible ecough, and will doubtless be deemed perfectly satisfactory by many people, but "facts are stubborn things." Words are breath, which may or may not be true, but there can be no doubt about the existence of a thirg that can be seen and handled, and if the editor of the Capital is acxious, as we suppose he is, to disabuse his readers of the errors of belief into which he has unintentionally led them on this subject, and will avail himself of the opportunity for taking a short and agreeable tide to this city afforded by the ferry boats or local trains, and will call at this office, we will be glad to show him, for we have it in our paper room in all its perfection, one of the suits of armor described at length in another column, the existence of which he denies. It is similar to these we saw on battle fields during the war, and could as easily be taken for a substitute for a paper or linea besom and collar as for a house on fire. We don't blame the effer who were it, though it did give him a great advantage over his Confederate opponent, whose breast hardly had a cotton rag to shield it from the more improved arms and the superior numbers of the Union forces, but the truth must be told.

We have been permitted to make the follow ing extract from a private letter from Calais, Maine, to a gentleman in this city, which will throw some light upon the condition of politics

"Politics are getting bot in this State of curs. Senator Z.ch Chandler, of Michigan, spoke to u. Bainiday night, but his borcing words against the solid South failed to burn as formerly in war times. Talk about solid South after claiming Florida and Louisians. We, the people, have common serse, and they will find it so. The republicans can not blind our eyes louger. It it is true that as gots Maine so goes the Union, theu good bye republicanism. I have always been a strong republican, but no mera for me. No more scotional strife for me. I served through the war from '61 to '66, and got all I wanted of that."

The messer in which the Quander case, with which every body in this vicinity is familiar, is treated by the radical newspapers of the fled in parie. country, would induce us, if we had no other teason, to discredit all their accounts of crucky to acgrees which they insert in their columns under the standing head of "Southern Outrages. " Quander is represented by them to be at Quietstowa. Both vessels were of iron. an honest, intelligent, educated and highly re pecialle colored man, whose thrift and superierity to the degenerate F. Radical seconds about the condition of the negroes in the South don't agree, for, while one day they say that the morro exedus from the lower Mississippi is caused by the crucky and injustice of the whites there, the very next they say that within five years from this time at least one-fourth of the farming interests of Alabama will be owned by the negroes, and that they are a ready the great cotton raisers there. The condition indicated by the former statement is utterly incompatible with the egistered of the state of things mentioned in the latter.

The radical journa's animadvert severely, and with all the assumed repugnance to such matters that they are capable of manifesting investigating agents are private. The Fall River strikers would go to Kansas, where they could make themselves comfortable homes, were it not that the negroes, who have been led by false promises to go to that State from the lower Mussissippi, are working for such small wages that hardly any other sort of labor can find employment there. Thus again have the radicals discovered that the weapon they used was a boomerang.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aux. 13, 1879. Dispatches received at the office of the National Board of Health bery to day give twenty two cases of and five deaths from yellow fever at Memphis sices yesterday's report-a considerable falling off from the reports of several previous days. Dr. Furner, the secretary of the Beard, says intelligence received at the office is to the effect that Memphis is now completely isolated, and that with the exception of New Orleans, in which sporadic cases of yellow fever occur every year, but where no eases have been reported for the last ten days, no case has occurred in the whole Mississippi Valley, this season, the origin of which can not be traced directly to Memphia, nor one of that fort that has proved a disease spreader, simply because in apparent opposition to the democratic party the locality in which it occurred did not possess the conditions essentially requisite for the prevalence of yellow fever. Judge Hughes Interviewed. In a recent interview with a correspondent of the New York Herald, Judge Hughes, of Virginia, said : "I do not think that a 'wise and politic course oward the South' by the republican party, can work any favorable result for that party here."

"Perhaps it has never been tried?" "Has it not? No man pursued a more wise and politic course,' not to say chivalric and generous than Geo. Grant did toward Confederate efficers and soldiers after the cessation of hostilities and during his service as General of the Army. Have southern soldiers and officers abused him the less for imputed political misdoines? I thick not."

"Has any special experiment of the sort ever been tried?" "Well, take the case of Virginia. In the political campaign of 1869 a party was formed -a party calling itself conservative, headed by Governor Walker. It appeared to drive the democratic party out of the field. It even claimed to be, not indeed a republican, but a Grant republica party. It assumed the special championship of 'General Grant's policy' of conditiation. It was supported by the Herald, the New Hork Tribucc, Times and World in singular second. It enjoyed the countenance and largely the patronage of Grant's adminis ly gave way to it and united heartily in supporting its candidates and measures. But alformation of a conservative republican party, dominated by native republicans, did it realiza administration, it did not support him for the Presidency in 1872. Every man's recollection mecks at the pretensions of this Grant recubli ready pursued a conditatory policy toward the Semb. "Cro you explain why the republican party his always been so obnexious to the Southern people?

"I can, but there is no justification for it. The republican party has chiefly been blamed by them for its course on the negre question. In that respect the republicans had either to establish a form of ward keepership over the negroes for twenty or twenty five years under the Freedman's Bureau system or give the negross the ballet. One or the other alternative was necessary. They adopted the latter expedient, which was certainly the one reposing the most confidence and most power in the South ern whites, and appealing most strongly to their magnanimity. How this course was met everybody knows who can estimate the volumes negro governments.

"I suppose you can name other overtures made by the republicans with similar results?" 'Yes, I cic. A like reward attended the act of the republican party in turning over the Southern States from military to domestic rule. Mr. Greeley, the Southern democracy's own caedidate, thought that the military govern ments ought to have been maintained in the States for at least ten years. Yet Ger. Grant reported, and the republicans thought differently. It was the republican party which restored self government in four years after their of him would be lost, but that if nothing was suppression to States which had conducted said about it and he retained his health he assist the government one of the most form dable bloods, gigantic and protracted wars terest. Mr. Melntire is by no means certain known to listers. Did this 'wise and politic how much money he has last. The $190 he course occiliate the dominant class of the knows is gone, but how much mere is what he | South to the republican party? The conspicu ous, serious, painful, noly present fact of the solid South auswers that question."

"So you despair of good results from the and plication of any further wise and politic course? 'Eo long as party lines are drawn as they are there is no charge of maintaining a vigorous re The existence of publican party at the South the creamization here only furnishes, despite of all logical reflections and hopes to the contrary, an excuse for keeping up the old war issues on the stump. Conciliation can effect nothing in the sump. Conciliation can effect nothing in relief of the condition implied by the term 'solid South' General Grant gave his countenance to General Kamper over myself in the State canvass of 1873. Did he conciliate the General of his party? Who decried him more angrily than Kemper?"

"What is your opinion, Judge, about President Hayes' Southern policy?"
"I smiled when I heard that Mr. Hayes had appointed Judge Key to his Cabinet—an honest man and a good Southern democrat. While it was thought that all other Southern offices would go like the Cabinet office, to Southern democrats, there were some indications that the Hayes policy would work good results. But since a dif-ferent belief has obtained I doubt if Mr. Hayes s in much higher favor with the 'solid South' than General Grant had been before going out of office."

"Or parties in the future what have you to say, "I think there can be no other state of affairs than that implied in the term 'solid South' until the political issues of the country have become changed. I think Virginia and most of the Southern States will go with the party of the soundest economical principles and measures. I trust that the country will bestow its thoughts in the years just before us upon great questions of political economy, on which there will be no North, no South, no East, no West. Until it does, and until the war ideas, war issues and war parties disappear, the country may count upon a 'solid South' as a fixed fact,' which no 'wise and politic course' can alter."
